

Cellarmaster a.k.a. Cellar Magician

The barrels are topped, the tanks are cleaned and the cellar is shiny, spotless, and sanitized. You orchestrate the daily work orders to bring it all together, while keeping harmony among the team members. You know exactly when the trucks are arriving to deliver glass and pick up finished pallets of wine. No one really understands how you make it all happen!

We're Dry Creek Vineyard, one of the most successful and last remaining iconic, family-owned wineries in Sonoma County. We are seeking a top-notch Cellarmaster to join our talented, passionate winemaking team and lead a production team that makes critically acclaimed wines.

You've probably been working in a similar role for a few years and are now looking to work with an amazing team. At our family winery, you will have a seat at the winemaking table and your input will be taken seriously. You'll play a pivotal role to ensure our commitment to crafting authentic wines and achieving a consistent style, whether the blend is a few hundred or few thousand cases.

You are able to pull new methods and efficiencies out of your bag of tricks with ease. You are constantly thinking about ways to improve wine quality and efficiency, and you have a knack for knowing what the winery needs before the winery actually needs it. Hearing the winemakers say we're making better wines because of you is what you live for!

You have a passion for wine production and are a natural at managing teams. You enjoy fostering relationships with your co-workers and give out your knowledge, skills, and production secrets freely. You work actively to resolve conflicts, put the success of the team above your own interest, and you treat others with respect and understanding. You know how to keep A LOT of balls in the air – and you love it!

Does this sound like the type of role you would like to learn more about? Introduce yourself with a cover letter and resume.
